

A photograph of three people (two men and one woman) standing in a forest with autumn foliage. They are holding a young tree sapling. The man on the right is holding a shovel. The background is filled with trees and fallen leaves.

MORE TREES NOW: ROOTING FOR A GREENER ENGLAND

More Trees Now rescues saplings (young trees) from places where they will wither or be removed and gives them away for free, to accelerate tree planting initiatives!

Every tree makes hundreds of saplings a year. Many of which will not reach maturity. They are a source of free, easy, and often native trees. By organising a #saplingrescue we give these trees a second chance to mature. That way we help the climate and our biodiversity!

Together (trans)plant more trees!

Do you join us?

Anyone can help: organise a rescue, create a treehub, pick up some trees to plant and much more! Go to www.moretreesnow.eco/england

MORETREENOW