

A photograph of three people (two men and one woman) standing in a forest with autumn foliage. They are smiling and holding a young tree sapling. The background shows trees with some yellow and orange leaves, and a clear blue sky. The ground is covered in fallen leaves.

Mother Nature as our nursery

Help to transplant trees

MORE TREES NOW

moretreesnow.eco

More Trees Now rescues excess saplings, to give away for free to others seeking to plant more trees. These seedlings, shrubs, and cuttings grow in places where they cannot mature. A source of free, sustainable planting material.

Trees that would otherwise wither or be shredded are given the opportunity to grow into mature trees elsewhere. An unwelcome tree growing in a peat bog may contribute to the local biodiversity in a new park. A community-led program that turns climate and biodiversity concerns into concrete and simple action. If we only roll up our sleeves, we can plant more trees!

More Trees Now is infinitely scalable

2+ million
free saplings rescued and planted

3000+ rescue missions launched

20.000+
participants in the project world wide

Netherlands, Germany, the UK, Ireland and France
all have Local sapling rescue groups

Would you like to help us rescue saplings?
moretreesnow.eco/iwanttohelp

Would you like to have free trees?
moretreesnow.eco/iwanttrees

Want to support the project?
moretreesnow.eco/donate

Let's rescue and plant 1 billion trees!

MORETREENOW